Sise, Vice President of the Clark County Sunday School Union, of Springfield township, will conduct a Sabbath school mass meeting in the U. B. church Sabbath evening. Mr. Size has the honor of giving highly interesting meetings, and the one held previous to this was of vast value and largely attended. He will have all speeches short and to the point. We kindly invite our friends from other parts to be present. House-cleaning is the order of the day now among the good housewives of this place. When you see a woman with an old dress on which she had put in the reg-bag several months ago and an old stocking drawn down over her head, you can bet your life that woman is cleaning house.

Mrs. Leonard Croft, of the city, was a guest of Miss Julia Darst this week.

The carpenters have got the frame work of Mrs. Knox's new house up, and will complete the building as rapidly as possible.

Mrs. John Fleharty, of the city, visited friends here Wednesday. The annual convention of the Clark County Sabbath School Union will be held in our church on Thursday, June 18, Mr. A. H. Powell will leave shortly for

Charley Alexander, the enterprising young carrier of the SUNDAY GLORE-REPUBLIC at this place, is increasing the sales of his paper every Sunday. Charley is a hustler and gets the paper around on time. On the 15th of June next the members of Lone Star Lodge, I. O. O. F., will celebrate the first anniversary of the institution of their lodge here at their lodge room in Red Mens' building. They are making preparations to have a grand time on that evening Among the teatures of the event will be a social supper, literary exercises, music, both vocal and instrumental, and a good time in general. He was brought here last night by Marshal Tounts and locked up in jail. The grand jury has tound three separate indictments to embezzlement against him. Jobes says he'll have no bother in gesting out of his troubles, as he never intended to swindle any person. At the time of his arrest in Hartford City he was running a small grocery store.

The Salvation "Midget" Falls.

The Salvation Army has received a severe shock by the tall of one of its members who was regarded as "one of the bright, particular stars" of the Army, and is known here as smong those who first stormed the "devil's works" in this city, going from here to

Or Monday night the members of the Army were invited to the residence of Mrs Caddy, on Spring Hill, near Xenia, to tea Among those who accepted the invitation was Miss Maggie Lewis. A very pleasant evening was spent, the members leaving for the barracks in time to be present at the she had observed them during their presence,

In inside to the officers and other members of the army, it is proper to state here that a few days ago they discovered that Mis-Lewis was diverging from the straight pach and had determined to send her home, and had fixed last A onday as the day of her departure, but at her own request she was allowed to remains few days longer. The captain made an examination of Miss Lewis's effects as soon as their boarding house was reached, and to her dismay tound the suspicion to be well founded, as in her purse the two stolen dollars were discovered. They were returned to Mrs. McFarland, and yesterday 'Toe Midget" was sent to ber home in

Maggie Lewis, the erring girl, is but a prirate in the army, although the represented that she was a cadet. She came here of her own accord and during the establishment of the army rendered excellent service. At the time she committed the theft she had been discharged from duty and the army is in no manner responsible for the acts although the officers have sought to make good all of her shortcomings of a pecuniary nature. The two enterprising business men of South girl is not an officer, but simply a private in the army, and so young she should be under her parents' care.

In connection with this escapade the janitor of the Xenia Opera House says that one night while the Salvation Army was holding services in that building, he detected the same girl and another female member of the John's Lutheran church, corner of Fisher and army back of the scenery, engaged in a spirited hogging match, catch as catch can. with two male members of the army, who were on a visit to the Xenia troops. Captain Ross, the original commander of the Xen's place from his late residence, 72 West Jeffer- Barracks, is at home in Seubenville, sick, son street, Monday at 2:30 o'clock p. m. The while all these worldly proceedings are in Masonic and Odd Fellow traternities will have progress.

Mr. James Kirk, the accomm slating and popular clerk of the Arcade hotel, returned there. Mr. Kirk has severed his connections general racket. He was locked up in the with the betel, and will leave Monday for Ackron, O., where he will open a hotel. He has the best wishes of his many triends here, and will receive a liberal patronage from the commercial traveler, who he is a favorite

Some Boston Lawyers' Incomes.

There's Judge Hoar, I suppose he must have an income from his legal practice that amounts to at least $25,ooo a year, easy. He is somewhat of an old fogy in the matter of charging. He is a very light charger. Indeed, he is too old-fashioned altogether for his own good. He is probably as able a jurist as ever lived in Massachusetts; yes, or in New England, and is by all odds the ablest man at the bar now. tell you that his charges are so moderate that many corporations go to him for opinions when they don't really need them. Judge Hoar's opinions are not "cheap" in any other way, though, and you can pin your faith to them every time.

Judge William Russell, of Boston, also finds fortune friendly to him. I don't know whether or not good luck ever threw her proverbial old slipper at the judge, but I guess she hits him about $30,000 every year. He can buy new shoes instead of the "old slip-pers."

The venerable Sidney Bartlett, the Nestor of this bar, used to make over $100,000 a year, though it was not derived from his purely law practice. I should say that at least half of it came out of what be termed his purely pro-fessional business, and the balance from his investments, mostly in railroading. He is pretty wealthy, proba-bly worth $1,500,000 to $2,000,000.

Peleg W. Chandler used to have good-sized law practice, too, probably averaging over $50,000 a year. He is not so active in the profession, for he must be about 80 years old now. Still, I know that some of the leading lawyers hereabouts consult him upon important legal matters. His son, Park-er C. Chandler, does a pretty good business, ranging from $25,000 to $30,-000 a year. He doesn't go into court much, but you know that those who are called "office lawyers" are the ones that make the most, in consulta ones that make the most, in consulta-tions, advice, etc.

Then there's George O. Shattuck, who used to be Chandler's partner. I guess he must do a law business of $25,000 a year, besides making a good many extra dollars in railroads. He is fairly rich now, and has an excellent income.—Boston Globe.

Your Boy's Companions. See that your boys have good asso-ciates. A mother is quick to observe; she can judge the kind of companions her boys have by their behavior in the house when the boys bring them home, and, if she knows they are not all she would wish, will advise and admonish would wish, will advise and admonish they are not good. Better let them have a few good companions than many who are "hail fellows well met." A father has more opportunities for observing the outside life of the boys than the mother, and should spare a few minutes of his surplus time to inquire into the outside life of his boys just entering into life. A well regulajust entering into life. A well regula-ted household depends upon the con-duct of the father as of the mother. Command your children's respect from their infancy and you will always have is through life.—Ihiladelphia (lall. The Editor and the Book Agents.

We can stand a book agent, provided he is of the masculine denomination. We are not afraid of him. We know that he is coming and can deal with him without buying his book. He may te pompous and courtly or he may be pimpled and cadaverous; his lips may be bestrewed with honeyed flatteries; he may be oily and crafty in his approaches; he may modestly ask for "just a moment of our precious time;" he may say that he only craves the use of our name, or he may charge in upon us and seek to carry us by storm. This does not matter with us. He is a man, and so are we in a small way, and we have our rights. We tell him what we will and what we won't, and that ends

But when she comes, then is the winter of our discontent. We bow to the storm, and have no remarks to submit. All the hidden resources of our politeness are called into requisition. She is a woman and has the advantage of us. She has seen better days, and has a tear in her eye. She belongs to an old family, and swam in luxury in her youth. Little cares she for money; character is everything with her. She is working in the interests of literature and to lift up society. Her book is for the inner circle, and is des-tined to ennoble the character of mothers, and in that way to add glory to our republican institutions.

She came the other day. How glib and rattling she was! She had us before we knew it. She had us sitting as erect as a sunbeam in July, and meek-ly nodding assent to her sage observa-tions. We neither moved hand nor foot, and, as for talking, we had no chance. She talked fast, and she talked long, and she talked all the time. After regaling us with the grandeur of her ancestry, the pleasures of her childhood, and the surpassing excellence of her book, she touched us up. She did it handsomely. She expiated on the potency of our influence, the value of our personal signature, and the well-known warmth and kindness of our heart. Greatness, she hinted, always had a tear on its cheek for the struggling and unfortunate. And there we were—dumb and foolish, a victim to her spell. Time came and went, but she went on, and on, and on. We felt fatigued and lonesome, and won-dered how it would end. Finally, she gradually descended from her circum-locutory flight, and lit in the region of business. The atmosphere became commercial, and it was a question of dollars and cents. She had a book for sale and desired to sell us a copy. It ceased to be a question of ancestry,

The spell was broken, and all we had to do was to say whether or not we would take the book. We did it as well as we could—we spoke in a bright and respectful tonewe even thanked her for her visit—we paid her a tribute to her brilliant conversational gifts—we wished her high fortune and a golden future, and expressed regret that it had to be so. How her whole aspect changed! She patted her foot with petulance, her face flushed, she breathed wildly, and swept angrily away.

And yet truly we felt sorry for her.
It hurt us to think of her hard lot and desperate devices to stem the tide of adverse fortune. We would have bought her book, except that we could not conscientiously pay an exorbitant price for a useless article.—Richmond (Va.) Religious Herald.

The bowl of the pipe used by the Japanese smokers in the London colony is hardly as large as a thimble, and the pipe is exhausted in three or four whifs. The fans are about a foot long, and often supply the Darkening Oak.

To render new oak wainscoting and oak furniture dark and give it an antique appearance we have it from good authority that ammonia is the cleanest, best, and cheapest material that can be used. The liquid stains commonly used are apt to raise the grain of the wood, make it rough, and is with difficulty evenly applied, whereas in the use of ammonia it is simply the fumes that color the wood, and do it so completely that it is difficult to tell whether the wood is really never a light that it is difficult to tell whether the wood is really never the wood. er the wood is really new or old. A correspondent in the English Mechanic gives the following process of treatment, which he considers the best, after trying the various other processes used by builders and cabinet-makers to used by builders and cabinet-makers to darken woods: "Oak is fumigated by liquid ammonia, which may be bought at any wholesale chemist's. hould be placed in a dark and airshould be placed in a dark and sir-tight room (in a big packing-case, if you like), and half a pint or so of am-monia poured into a soup-plate, and placed upon the ground in the center of the compartment. This done, shut the entrance, and secure any cracks, if any, by pasted slips of paper. Remem-ber that the ammonia does not touch the oak, but the gas that comes from it acts in a wondrous manner upon the acts in a wondrous manner upon the tannic acid in that wood, and browns it sannic seid in that wood, and browns it so deeply that a shaving or two may actually be taken off without removing the color. The depth of shade will entirely depend upon the quantity of ammonia used and the time the wood is exposed. Try an odd bit first experimentally, and then use your own judgment."

Intelligent Pets.

Cats are like oysters, in that no one cats are like oysters, in that no one is neutral about them; everyone is explicitly or implicitly, friendly or hostile to them. And t ey are like children in their power of discovering, by a rapid and sure instinct, who likes them or who does not. It is difficult to win their effection, and it is difficult to win their affection, and it is easy to forfeit what it is hard to win. But when giv-en, their love, though less demonstra-tive, is more delicate and beautiful than that of a dog. Who that is ou really intimate terms with a cat has not watched its dismay at the signs of packing up and leaving home? We ourselves have known a cat who would recognize his master's footstep after a three months' absence, and come out to meet him in the hall, with tail erect, to meet him in the hall, with tail erect, and purring all over as if to the very verge of bursting. And another cat we know who comes up every morning between six and soven o'clock to wake his master, sits on the bed, and very gently feels first one eyelid and then the other with his paw. When an eye opens, but not till then, the cat sets up a loud purr, like the prayer of the fire-worshiper to the rising sun. Those who say lightly that cats care only for places, and not for persons, should go to the cat show at the Crystal Palace, where they may see recognitions between cat and owner that will cure them of so shallow an opin-

will cure them of so shallow an opin-ion. When we were last there one striking instance fell in our way. Cats greatly dislike these exhibitions; a cat, as a rule, is like Queen Vashti, unwilling to be shown, even to the nobles, at the pleasure of an Abasucrus. Shy, at the pleasure of an Ahasuerus. Shy, sensitive, wayward, and independent, a cat resents being placed upon a cushion in a wire cage and exposed to the unintelligent criticism, to say nothing of the fingers, of a mob of sightseers. One very eminent cat belonging to the masters' common room at Christ Church, Oxford, whose size and beauty have on several occasions entailed on him the hard necessity of attending a cat show takes, it is said, three days to recover from the sense of disgust to recover from the sense of disgust and humiliation which he feels, whethand humiliation which he feels, whether he gets a prize or not. On the occasion to which we refer, a row of distinguished cats were sitting with their backs turned to the sightseers. Two little girls presently pushed through the crowd to the cage or one of the largest, crying, "There's Dick!" The great cat turned round instantly, his face transfigured with joy, purred, and endeavored to scratch open the front of the cage that he might rejoin his little friends.—Spectator.

A Remarkable Cure of a Horse.

Col. James L. Fleming, a prominent grocery merchant, a member of the firm of Fleming & Lofton, Augusta, Ga., makes the following at toment of the treatment of a valuable horse with Swift's "specific:

In the fall of 1883 I had a valuable colt taken with a severe case of pinkere, which resulted in the most fearful case of blood poisoning I have ever seen. After eight or nine months of doctoring with every remody that I could hear of, I despaired of a cure. At this time the horse was unable to move, because of swollen limbs. His right hind leg was as large as a man's body, and has on it over fortly running sores. He had also a number of large sores on his body and other limbs. He was a most pitiable looking object, and I was advised to end his sufferings with the shotgun. He was a waluable animal and I did no want to look him. After racking my brain in search for another remedy more efficacious, I thought of Swift's specific, I knew it was invaluable to the human family as a blood purifier, and why should it not be for the animal as well? I did not hesitate, but sent last July to Atlanta for a supply.

I began the treatment with 4 or of S. S. S. and 4 on. of water three times a day. This I continued for a week. Then I increased to S. on and run it for a week. "I had been gray for nearly ten years Ayer's Hair Vigor. Since using it my hair has been restored to its original color, and very much in-creased in growth."

ETHEL TROTTER, Norfolk, Va.

"Several years ago I was afflicted with a humor in my scalp, which caused my hair to fall out, so that I became nearly bald. The use of Ayer's Hair Vigor cured me of the humor, checked the falling out of hair, and restored it to its original healthy condition."

J. B. YOUNG, Carrollton, Md.
